

ABSTRACT

A system, method and equipment may be implemented so that data content is selectively presented to an audience based on discrimination criteria specified by a user as well as categorization data, which is associated with the data content and provided by a trusted third-party selected by the user. Additionally, in accordance with an exemplary embodiment of the invention, labels corresponding to the data content may be presented in an index in a specialized format based on the discrimination criteria.

10